

Exponential or linear growth?

Can you distinguish between exponential and linear growth?

Linear and exponential relationships differ in the way the y-values change when the x-values increase by a constant amount:

- In a linear relationship, the y-values have equal differences.
- In an exponential relationship, the y-values have equal ratios.

Here is what to do.

